Reasons to Attend the First, Rutherford County Special Populations Conference

- The first ever, specifically designed conference for educators to gain knowledge and strategies for addressing special populations (Gifted Learners, English Learners, Students living in poverty or experiencing homelessness, Learners with disabilities or challenging behaviors) in the general education classroom
- Hundreds of meaningful teaching and intervention strategies that connect directly to the classroom and can be used immediately
- Insight, motivation, and research-based strategies from local practitioners
- 26 interactive sessions to empower, educate, and prepare teachers to serve all students, at every grade level
- Important topics RCS educators are facing today, including student engagement and motivation, managing diversity, and innovative teaching and learning
- To earn 4 hours each day, you must attend 8:00am-12:00pm, but attending both days is not mandatory. Credits appear on the 2020-2021 academic school year.
